IMPORTANCE OF PLACE – GETTING TO KNOW NEIGHBOURS BUILDS COMMUNITY

February and March are a busy time in many communities with local fairs and festivals that combine fun, working with our neighbours while fundraising for our local community. Here in Mt Victoria, Wellington we held our second fair in two years. There were food stalls, an eco-theme, Mt Victoria 'walks' and a speakers' corner. As well as sizzling many sausages (and trying not to burn too many!), this meant lots of conversations and enough money raised to fund a chair-lift access in our community rooms for people with disabilities.

Supporting stronger neighbourhoods and communities is what Inspiring Communities is all about and we are passionate about these local events, and larger ones such as Neighbours Day. Many positive conversations are being held about the benefits of Neighbours Day and its potential to impact more of New Zealand - we hope to share more on this next month. Meanwhile check out links to some great neighbourhood building resources and ideas under News You Can Use below.

The importance of 'place', knowing and supporting our neighbours, keeping an eye out for each other is increasingly recognised as vital. For us in NZ, keeping an eye out for our neighbours means reaching across the Pacific too, where there are real and urgent needs following Cyclone Pat. The family of Alfred Ngaro, one of our Exchange team comes from Aitutaki in the Cook Islands, which has been left in devastation. The Cook Islands, independent for all practical purposes, share citizenship with New Zealand. They are our close neighbours. We hope many will support the important, concerted fundraising effort through the Aitutaki Enea Cyclone Relief Fund.

IMPORTANCE OF LEARNING

March has been about much preparatory work for the Inspiring Communities Exchange, especially for the group planning our national Learning Forum next month with our Core Learning Cluster initiatives. Around 30 people from the initiatives and our Exchange team will be learning together on Rakiura/Stewart Island. Under Jenny Blagdon's guidance participants from the Core Learning Cluster have been co-creating this forum. The special venue, and the co-design process, have brought an exciting dimension and vitality. We will share the key gleanings from the forum with you in May.

We are also continuing to hone the content for our 'deeper learning' publication (for which 'What we are Learning' is the latest in a succession of working titles!) and we look forward to sharing this with you. Meanwhile, happy reading - and as always we welcome your comments and suggestions.

Don't be put off by the name! It is about convening conversations that matter using methods, maps, and planning tools to engage groups and teams in meaningful conversation, deliberate collaboration, and group-supported action for the common good.

Increasingly it is about involving community leaders who:

- want to learn to lead without being possessive
- want to be helpful without taking credit, and
- are ready to let go in order to achieve more for the common good.

At the heart is the discipline of asking really useful questions: Albert Einstein said: If I had an hour to solve a problem and my life depended on the solution, I would spend the first 55 minutes determining the proper question to ask, for once I know the proper question, I could solve the problem in less than 5 minutes.

NEWS YOU CAN USE

 Jane's Walk ***

Jane's Walk invites people to get out of their cars and get connected. It is inspired by the life and work of the late Jane Jacobs of Toronto – a significant contributor to good neighbourhood design. For her, the best way to get to know parks, sidewalks and streets was to get out and walk around, especially with some local residents.

Last year there were 315 Jane's Walks in cities across Canada and the US led by urban planners, youth, guerrilla gardeners, professors, newcomers, social historians, cyclists...

ABOUT THE INSPIRING COMMUNITIES EXCHANGE

We are a 'virtual' team of six individuals (based in Wellington, Auckland, the Bay of Plenty and also Brisbane); or around 3 full time equivalents; with many decades of community development social entrepreneurial and community change experience in Aotearoa.

Our mission is to support initiatives that strengthen communities of place. Primarily this is a networking function, connecting people and communities together to reduce 'reinventing the wheel' and encourage open sharing and learning together.

We also actively seek to influence policy and practice in NZ through building relationships with local government, central government, funders and academics. For example we presented on community-led development recently to the Social Service Industry Training Organisation and at the end of last year at the 'Passing Go' conference in North Shore discussing Auckland governance change.

The work of the Inspiring Communities Exchange is funded primarily by The Tindall Foundation with support from The Todd Foundation, the J R McKenzie Trust and others who generously contribute time, skills and resources. Inspiring Communities is a non-profit organisation, operated by the Community-Led Development Trust. We have a management group and a strategic guiding group that reflect multiple sectors.

You can read about our approach to learning, our framework for Community-Led Development, and more community stories at inspiringcommunities.org.nz
